CHIKARA KOMURA

Hydrangea in the Sea, 2020, Photography on Canvas, 21.5" x 29"

Chikara Komura is a Japanese painter and photographer who uses his lens to capture the world around him from his own perspective. Through his work, the artist examines the vast and intricate history of the Earth and our place within it. He is particularly interested in the regeneration of nature; from the strata of stone formations that illustrate the Earth's physical history to the life cycles of flora and fauna. Flowers turn into seeds and transcend to a new generation; trees die and mushrooms grow to return them to the earth. Komura's images explore the transmigration of the soul of all beings; everything that comes from the Earth eventually returns to it, only to return in a new form.
